

Media Blender Version 3.0

WebLine Communications Corporation produces documentation designed for online use, provided in HTML format. In addition, we supply PDF reproductions of the online documentation to serve your printing needs.

Accessing documentation

You can access documentation before and after installing the software.

Before installing

In a web browser, open getstart.htm, which resides at the top level of the CD. This Getting Started page describes the contents of the CD and links to all installation and administration documentation.

After installation

After you've installed the product, you can access our online books using the documentation index. Use the following URLs to access the documentation index for the product you've installed.

The documentation index for this product...	...resides at this URL
Media Blender	<Blender servername>/help
Trailhead	<Trailhead servername>/help/trailhead

You can also access the Media Blender documentation index by clicking Help System on the Media Blender Home Page. (Type your server name to go to the Media Blender Home Page.)

Online books

Online books are available as links from the documentation index pages for both Media Blender and Trailhead.

Printing Online Books

Our books are designed for online use, and so are best viewed using the HTML versions. However, to view and print the PDF versions, use Adobe's Acrobat Reader, which you can download from Adobe's web site (www.adobe.com).

Online help

Online help is available for both Media Blender and Trailhead administration. Click the help links on the Media Blender and Trailhead control panels to access online help.
